Pete the Kitty is going to the doctor for the first time, and he's a little nervous. But with the help of his friend Emily, he learns that going to the doctor can be fun and even helpful.

Pete and Emily start by playing doctor in Pete's room. Emily pretends to be the doctor, and Pete pretends to be the patient. Emily checks Pete's ears, his eyes, and his throat. She even gives him a shot (with a pretend needle, of course).

After their pretend play, Pete and Emily go to the real doctor's office. Pete is still a little nervous, but he remembers all the fun he had playing doctor with Emily. The doctor checks Pete's ears, his eyes, and his throat, just like Emily did. Then, the doctor gives Pete a real shot (this time, with a real needle). Pete is brave and doesn't cry.

After his checkup, Pete is glad he went to the doctor. He knows that the doctor is there to help him stay healthy and happy. And he's proud of himself for being so brave.
